Day 1

Comprehension

ii. Read the passage carefully:

Once a policeman was travelling from Andaman to Kolkata in a ship with his trained dog. The policeman stood on the deck to watch the open sea. Suddenly, the dog fell into the sea. The dog was struggling to save its life. The policeman immediately ran to the captain. He requested him to stop the ship and save the dog's life. The captain widened his eyes and said, "Save a dog? Are you joking? We have some fixed rules to follow. We save only human beings. If any human being falls, we will stop the ship and save him/her." Hearing this, the policeman jumped into the sea. The captain immediately stopped the ship. He lowered a lifeboat to save the policeman and his dog. Both the policeman and the dog were pulled into the ship safely.

The Story of Tea

There is a very simple way to make a good cup of tea. In order to get the proper flavour of tea, the water must be boiling when it hits the teabag. It is very important that the teapot is warmed up to make sure that your tea remains hot.

The first people who started to drink tea were in China. At first it was used as a medical drink. Then, 1200 years later tea became a popular drink and from China it spread to Japan and then to other countries.

The most common legend about the discovery of tea, is that leaves from a tea tree fell into an emperor's cup of boiling water. The emperor was curious and decided to try some of the new liquid. He liked the liquid. Since that strange beginning, many people started to drink tea.

Task: Read the passage and think about other discoveries that happened around the world.
