Sharing is caring

"As we work to create light for others, we naturally light our own way."

Mary Anne Radmacher

We usually spend so much time sweating the small stuff; worrying, complaining, comparing, wishing, wanting, and waiting for something bigger and better instead of focusing on all the simple blessings that surround us every day. Life is so fragile and all it takes is a single moment to change everything you take for granted. As a leader I suggest my team and my students to focus on what's important and be grateful! As we all are blessed! Believe it! Let's live our lives and leave no regrets.

The best we can do to reciprocate our blessings is to share the little we have with the people around us. Sharing can be anything, a good advice, loving gesture from an elder, appreciation and supportive pat on our little ones back, good values, and creative ideas.

By associating ourselves with the spirit of sharing our knowledge and morals with students we can create a positive environment of inculcating the value of service to society at school level as this is the stage of development which holds significant importance in an adult life.

And what I come to as a conclusion and response is that we will see the emergence of adults with confidence, clarity, and empathy. Adults who will not shy away in standing as a strong support to the weaker ones, ambassadors with clarity, care takers with an objective and purpose, in short - BETTER HUMANS.

"I think that because this is a moral universe, then right will prevail, goodness will prevail, compassion will prevail, laughter will prevail, love, caring, sharing will prevail. Because, we are made for goodness. We are made for love. -Desmond Tutu

Sowing seeds of compassion and love in young age has its long-lasting impact. It may be not significantly observed in early stages but as time passes the results are visible with its full beauty. The tender minds should be nourished and nurtured with values that will help them to be passionate and wise ambassador of peace and hope.

As adults it's our duty to ensure healthy environment for children, a place where they grow taking care of each other and move together in the direction of progressive development, to create a society where each one knows and understand the value of their actions and is well aware of being responsible.

As a Sanskar family we daily strive to create a better growing space for our students and nurture them with life skills and value-based learning. The facilitators keep on discussing, planning, and creating an innovative pedagogy to nurture holistic approach and development in the school system. The execution of Inter class, Intra class and Inter school activities is one such attempt of the school to channelize the young budding potential in the field of creativity.

Time to time the school in the previous months has conducted activities to create awareness among the students about various programmes and days dedicated to social and environmental cause and also providing them with an insight of how people across the globe have joined together to create a better place of living for the present and future generations to come.

Through the conduction of the activities students were taught to respect the labour of the society and importance of skilled professions by conducting Clay Toy making, Craft making, Raakhi making competitions, they were made to understand the importance of sharing by introducing day celebration like: World food day where the students prepared and packed food items to be distributed to the less privileged and enjoy the feel of gratification by sharing their blessings with the ones who are in need, activities like celebrating national, and religious festivals inculcate among the students the love and respect for different cultures and beliefs.

We daily learn and grow in our lives and should not forget the importance of small steps that we take in the direction of development. So, let's not stop whatever little good we are doing in our lives, as each good deed counts and leave an impression on our kids. Remember children don't remember what you said but they always cherish what you do for them.

Where is Maths?

Maths is in my heart,
In my brain in my vein.

We can see it in a triangle,
In a circle, in a plain...
In a vehicle, in a train,
In an empty vessel or in a crane.

Maths is everywhere
In my heart in my brain.

Teacher taught us maths,
Maths taught us life,
A life full of number,
And numbers with no end,

Pi has a beginning but it never goes to end.

Mean is the average,
Everest is the highest, highest mean 1st,
Aryabhatta was the only one who give 0 very fast.

People asked, where we use maths?

देने का सुख

तरुवर फल नहिं खात है, सरवर पियहि न पान।

कहि रहीम पर काज हित, संपति संचहि सुजान॥

रहीम दासजी का यह दोहा देने के महत्व को बड़े सटीक शब्दों और उदाहरणों द्वारा स्पष्ट करता है। वास्तव में देने वाला ही जानता है कि उसे किसी को कुछ प्रदान कर किस प्रकार अद्भुत सुख की प्राप्ति होती है। किसी को कुछ देने या प्रदान करने के पीछे मूल भाव उसकी परवाह करना होता है। जब हम किसी को पहले से बेहतर स्थिति में देखना चाहते हैं तो हम उस व्यक्ति की सहायता करते हैं या उसे कुछ देते हैं।

देने का अर्थ केवल कोई वस्तु या धन देना ही नहीं होता है। आप और हम प्रतिदिन दूसरों को कुछ ना कुछ अवश्य देते हैं जैसे - सलाह, मीठे बोल, मार्गदर्शन आदि। एक अध्यपिका होने के नाते मैं छात्रों को शिक्षा प्रदान करती हूँ जो मुझे तुष्टि के भाव से भर देता है। यदि मैं वर्तमान समय की बात करूँ तो आज छात्रों को केवल शिक्षा देना ही पर्याप्त नहीं है। उन्हें आवश्यकता है नैतिक मूल्यों और संस्कारों को जानने की। आज एकल परिवारों में यह संभव नहीं हो पा रहा है इसलिए यह

ज़िम्मेदारी भी अब बहुत हद तक विद्यालय उठा रहे हैं। इसी क्रम में मेरा प्रयास रहता है कि छात्रों को पाठ पढ़ाते समय कोई न कोई नैतिक मूल्य अवश्य सिखाया जाय जैसे - बड़ों का सम्मान करना। इससे एक विद्यार्थी अपने माता-पिता, गुरुजन और अन्य बड़ों के साथ शिष्ट व्यवहार सीखता है।

छात्रों को भारतीय संस्कृति और संस्कारों से परिचित करवाते समय हमारा लक्ष्य उनके उज्ज्वल भविष्य की नीव डालना ही होता है। यह संस्कारी छात्र भविष्य में देश के ज़िम्मेदार नागरिक बनते हैं। इस प्रकार देश को योग्य नागरिक देने का सुख सचमुच अद्भुत है।

Partager c'est aimer

Le plus grand art de vivre heureux et paisiblement est de prendre soin des autres et de partager ceux qui appartiennent aux autres sans aucune hésitation ni inquiétude. Prendre soin est une propriété divine, il est dit qu'Allah Tout-Puissant se soucie d'une personne de plus de 70 mères. Alors qu'est-ce que le soin ce n'est rien d'autre que l'amour, la passion et la bienveillance pour les autres. On ne peut partager que ses articles et choses si quelqu'un en trouve d'autres adorables. La relation la plus attentionnée au monde est celle des parents, qui se soucient le plus de leur progéniture.

Que les objets et les biens sont partagés avec d'autres qui ne sont pas disponibles pour lui, et qu'un propriétaire d'un bien ne partagera que s'il pense qu'un tel bien peut également être disponible pour son être cher, alors il décide immédiatement de le donner pour leur usage.

Ainsi, le partage ne se fait que si quelqu'un a de l'amour pour les autres et d'une autre manière, il ne se souciera que s'il y a de la place dans son cœur pour cette personne. Il est donc tout à fait juste que nous puissions partager les choses si nous n'avons plus d'amour pour les autres. Une fois que nous sommes affectueux avec les autres, nous partagerons volontiers nos affaires avec les autres.

Le partage apporte l'amour, l'attention, la passion, la tolérance, l'interdépendance, l'empathie, la réactivité, la gratitude et l'harmonie non seulement entre les familles mais aussi dans les sociétés et les pays. Nous trouvons une personne, une société et un pays plus aimables et amicaux s'il partage ses affaires et nous aide dans les moments dedétresse et d'épreuves.

Sharing is Caring

Never stop caring, sharing and helping others, because it makes our life more meaningful.

Sharing means spreading joy. Sharing is a social skill which is essentially to be inculcated in the young ones to make them well-adjusted adults. Sharing by someone shows his/her concern and care. Sharing is a balance of respecting ownership and being considerate of others.

There are many ways through which we can inculcate the habit of sharing amongst our children like playing Hide and Seek, Ludo, puzzle games, building blocks, arts and crafts etc.

We can ask our children to share a sapling from the garden to emphasize that sharing could be caring not just for someone else but for the environment too.

Children can donate some clothes and toys from their own collection to some less fortunate children. By giving, it is not the material we count, rather the love we show by giving creates a feeling of caring.

Blessings always work. Giving peace to others is the greatest worship of God. We should develop empathy and care for others unconditionally. Sharing brings in the responsibility towards others, amongst the people. When we share, it shows our care towards them. A positive aura is created around us. People love to be around us.

Helping others is good for your health too. Doing something altruistic leads to positive psychological changes, strengthens the immune system, and can even reduce pain, thanks to the release of endorphins in the brain.

In today's world, we find that people are depressed. Though the population is increasing. But in the huge crowd of human beings, man is alone toggling up with various problems in the mind. We should take one step forward to understand their problems and listen to them, help them. By this, not only their stress will be released, rather we will have a feeling of satisfaction by helping others. It increases our lifespan too.

The smallest act of caring has the potential to turn a life around: Sharing is caring.

You must have often heard most of the young children uttering one phrase over and over again that is “it is mine!!” It is so because they do not understand the concept of sharing. In their own little world, it is all about them, and therefore, they generally do not make it a habit to share or care for others. However, when they grow up into a younger school-going kid they have to learn to share as a part of their social, emotional and cognitive development. It is the responsibility of every parent as well as the educators to teach children the value and importance of sharing so that they grow up into balanced adults who enjoy helping and caring others.

Sharing and caring creates deeper bonds as individual lean on each other for emotional support, hence the act of caring is so powerful. From caring, we learn about patience, understanding and loyalty that benefits individuals in both their personal and professional lives.

The caring persons are polite, generous, considerate, affectionate, understanding, loving and forgiving. They show care and sensitiveness to others feelings.

As parents and teachers, we teach them to read, write, and other skills, but if we often tend to neglect to teach them to care and be compassionate with others. This way, somehow, we are not really giving them all that is needed to fulfill their potential and achieve a sense of joy and satisfaction out of life. This is why it is important that the early childhood education at home as well as at the school addresses the aspects of the moral development of children and focuses especially at teaching them about caring and being compassionate with others.

Teaching the crucial art of sharing and caring is important for the moral development of a child. Caring and sharing are indeed positive behaviours that help children to develop social awareness in their adulthood and learn to care not only about others but also their feelings, reactions, and perspectives. These values have to be fostered both at home and schools at an early age so that it gets reflected in the children’s behaviours and attitude in later years. Here are few ways in which children can be made to learn to care and cooperate.

Create a Friendly Environment:

Creating and nurturing an environment that promotes a sense of sharing and caring is essential. For this, it is important that you never force a child to share. Instead, encourage sharing through tasks and activities. Remember that for children, toys are not just 'playthings' for them but valued possessions. So, when you encourage the attitude of sharing, respect their normal level of possessiveness and model sharing.

Practice Sharing Through Activities:

Practicing the act of sharing with a child can be done by setting up situations and opportunities where he/she can learn to share. Give them some snacks or toys to share with everyone in the room. Involve them in small activities at school or home. Art projects like painting, clay modelling, and collage making and drawing can also help to encourage children to share the materials and ideas with others.

Be a role model:

One of the golden rules to teach your child is 'Behave with others as you want others to behave with you'. This is very important to help mould your child's behaviour towards others. They will not only know how to behave with others but also will learn to think from others' perspective and respect their feelings. This rule will guide the child into how to handle and care for others when they need them or their things.

Learning to share and care for others can be a great challenge for younger children. But, it is indeed an essential life skill needed to be learned and practiced throughout the childhood as well as later in life.

We create and foster a friendly learning environment that nurtures and imbibes the art of sharing and caring in the young minds of our budding geniuses.

“Life ends when you stop dreaming, Hope ends when stop believing, Love ends when you stop caring, Friendship ends when you stop sharing”

Sharing is an act that equates to caring. This is very true in how we build and function within our social relationships. When we share, we are also imparting part and parcel of ourselves in order to signify that we are secured enough to give to others. When we share things that we have to others, we showcase a sense of humility and empathy to those in need. The simple phrase “sharing is caring” speaks in volumes for it illustrates a trait that everyone understands and that seems pleasing to all.

Being able to share is being is being able to understand the situation that others are in and through sharing, we are able to do more than just give; we take part in the experience of others.

It's the prime duty of every parent to inculcate this habit in their children so that it helps them adapt socially at a later stage. The best place to start learning is at home. Your child observes your actions from the very beginning. Set an example for them and try these easy tips as well.

Set an example for them

Your baby is your little replica. You need to teach them by practically doing certain activities in front of them. Share your favourite things with your child, your partner, the domestic help and so on. This will create awareness about sharing.

Start at home

A child begins to learn values at his/her home. So, teach siblings to share their toys and other belongings with each other. Besides, you can also share your things with them by asking for something in return. It will build a nice give and take relationship.

Stop being forceful

Don't be a fierce parent. Our little ones are very fragile. They tend to develop resisting behavioural patterns if they are forced beyond limits. Thus, take a polite approach without forcing them.

Be gentle

A lot can be accomplished with patience and gentleness. You can make your child do things your way through the language of love. However, if you take an aggressive approach, he/she will also become unwilling to learn anything.

Make donations often

Talk about your donations when you plan for them. Let them know how it functions and the causes you donate to. Make it a constant habit and take them along to donate their old toys and clothes, so they can donate with their own hands.

Sharing is caring

"Sharing makes you more significant than you are. The more you give to others, the more life you can receive".

It's important to care and share because if you do, other people would follow in your footsteps and the world would be a happier place. It effects people in a good way because if you do something good to someone, they will feel loved and most likely do something good for someone else. Be nice to everyone.

Sharing is a very close topic to us as it is an essential social skill to build healthy, strong relationships and contribute to the well-being and happiness of the collectively.

The practice of sharing makes you understand when someone else is in need without them telling you the same. Also, sharing gives you a sense of responsibility towards society. When you share, in turn, it shows you care, and people love to be around you for your positive aura.

Sharing is the joint use of a resource or space. It is also the process of dividing and distributing. ... Still more loosely, "sharing" can actually mean giving something as an outright gift: for example, to "share" one's food really means to give some of it as a gift.

Sharing helps people to interact in a meaningful and pleasant way that builds community. In addition, when you depend on and assist one another, it creates a real sense of belonging, teamwork, and shared destiny when you are able to trust in and depend on each other.

The Smallest act of caring has the potential to turn a life around: Sharing is caring

Teaching the crucial art of sharing and caring is important for the moral development of a child. When children are taught how to share things and care for others, they will learn to collaborate with fellow kids, practice kindness, and do things for others. Caring and sharing are indeed positive behaviours that help children develop social awareness in their adulthood and learn to care not only about others but also their feelings, reactions, and perspectives. These values have to be fostered both at home and schools at an early age so that it gets reflected in the children's behaviour and attitude in later years. Here are few ways in which children can be made to learn to care and cooperate.

Create a Friendly Environment:

Creating and nurturing an environment that promotes a sense of sharing and caring is essential. For this, it is important that you never force a child to share. Instead, encourage sharing through tasks and activities. Remember that for children, toys are not just 'playthings' for them but valued possessions. So, when you encourage the attitude of sharing, respect their normal level of possessiveness and model sharing.

Talk About Others' Perspective:

It is always good to talk to your child about his/her emotions related to sharing. Help them explore their feelings when you ask to share something with others. When a child holds back something or says 'no' to others, explain to him/her how the other person will be feeling. This will help the child understand how unhappy others would feel if he/she denies them. Also, show the child how happy others would get if he/she shares his/her toys, food, or anything else for that matter.

Practice Caring Behaviours:

One of the golden rules to teach your child is 'Behave with others as you want others to behave with you'. This is very important to help mould your child's behaviour towards others. They will not only know how to behave with others but also will learn to think from others' perspective and respect their feelings. This rule will guide the child into how to handle and care for others when they need them or their things.

I give great emphasis on value education, along with academics and extra-curricular activities to prepare students for a prospective future and turn them into good citizens of tomorrow. I maintain an environment where I praise and encourage the students then and there for any good sharing and caring activities that they involve in. This way, students feel motivated to do more of it. I believe that children can learn these things when given plenty of time and opportunities to practice. I create and foster a friendly learning environment that nurtures and imbibes the art of sharing and caring in the young minds of our budding geniuses.

Sharing forms, the basis of human life. All human beings have common needs and we have to make sure that we give each other portions of what we need to survive. Air is well apportioned for humans to live together breathing the same air and not finishing it for the others.

People distribute the space where they live on earth. This allows us to get spaces to build homes, schools, hospitals, roads and many other structures. Human beings distribute land to each other to share the earth's space for accommodation. Where people have failed to distribute their space, they have ended up going to war to fight for space or the resources that they fail to distribute such as land, water, and food.

As human beings are created to share; the earth space and its resources not only amongst themselves but also with plants, birds and animals. Division of spaces between plants, forests, and mountains allows people to benefit from plants as they take in the carbon dioxide that people and animals exhale and through photosynthesis produce the oxygen and food that human beings need for survival. Living together with animals and birds human beings share the earth and these for beneficial reasons that include getting food and resources for some of the most important elements for well-being.

Animals provide food for human beings and they also provide other important materials such as leather for clothing, shoes to keep human beings warm and safe. Animal bones are also used for many purposes including the development of tools and other important objects for well-being. Sharing is one of the most important aspects of human communal life. It allows people to relate and connect and take responsibility to each other's needs. It is the bases for families' love for each other, bearing each other's emotions, sensitivity and caring for one another. Sharing dear teachers and students helps to bring people to agree on common and acceptable behaviour to one another. It sets the accepted way to treat others and how-to live-in peace and be an accepted individual. Sharing is the thread that joints human beings together and makes them different from animals or any other creatures.

'Sharing' a social skill which makes you more significant than you are. The more you give to others, the more life you can receive. To share is to spread joy. We at Sanskar School live with the motto to let our children become selfless and help others or share something with others. Sharing is also a critical skill that comes in handy when children play and learn. It sows the seeds of empathy and helps in building the social skills required for a well-adjusted adult. The habit of giving is developed over several years hence it is never too early to start introducing the concept of sharing is caring to your child. Waiting in a line for their turn or using the phrases "my turn" or "your turn" during a game's activity gives them a sense of responsibility, makes empathetic, develops selfless attitude always appreciated and excepted unconditionally by others. When you share, in turn, it shows you care, and people love to be around you for your positive aura.

With these criteria always in the forefront, our classroom offers a wide range of developmentally appropriate activities for the children to explore, discover and manipulate in learning, science experiments and having fun.

Responsible consumption & production

Some people are getting more than enough,
The others are living their lives tough.
One person wastes and the other struggles,
This way we will be in many big troubles.

More than half of the fresh water frozen as ice,
So don't pollute water is my advice.
Fill your glass as much as you need,
Let's reuse water from AC's & RO's to water a seed.

1/3 of the food ends up in bins of retailers & consumers,
Like this we may have to starve in near future.
We can produce much as in need,
Remember, the earth has enough for man's need not his greed!

Almost 70% of energy consumed by cities,
The others are not even getting half of it with ease.
Don't keep lights & fans on when not in use,
Let us start with wastage reduce!!!

साझा करके देखो

'साझा करना ही देखभाल है' यह बात हमें बचपन से बताई जा रही है। आखिर इसका मतलब क्या होता है? इसका मतलब होता है दूसरों को अपनी चीजें देना जब उन्हें उनकी ज़रूरत हो। इसका महत्व यह है कि मुसीबत के समय हम किसी के काम आ पाते हैं। इंसानियत के नाते भी लोग दान देते हैं या किसी की मदद करते हैं।

साझा करने से हमें मन की शन्ति व संतुष्टि मिलती है और दूसरे लोगों का भला होता है। साझा केवल वस्तुएँ ही नहीं बल्कि विचार, संस्कार और भाव भी किए जाते हैं। जैसे हम अपने से छोटे बच्चों को उनकी किसी गलती पर समझाते हैं वह इसलिए क्योंकि हमें उनकी चिंता है।

अपने विचारों को दूसरों के साथ बांटने से भी उनका भला होता है जो कि साझा करने का ही एक रूप है। अगर हमारे विचारों से दूसरों का भला होता है तो यह भी 'शेयरिंग इस केयरिंग' का एक उदाहरण होता है।

अपनी जिन्दगी में हमें भी दूसरों की मदद की जरूरत पड़ती है और अगर हमें उस समय कोई मदद करने से मना कर दे तो बहुत बुरा लगता है। जब कभी ऐसा होता है कि किसी को हमारी सहायता की आवश्यकता होती है और हम अपने मतलब या स्वार्थ के लिए मना कर देते हैं, तो हम यह नहीं सोचते कि उनके लिए यह कितना महत्वपूर्ण है। हमें बिना स्वार्थ के सभी की मदद करनी चाहिए। अपनी वस्तुएँ दूसरों के साथ साझा कर उनकी मदद करना अच्छी बात है जो सबको करना चाहिए।

Remember those childhood days when you undoubtedly and willingly were ready to give everyone a share of what we possessed. Be it a smile, happiness, love or just a piece of chocolate, we shared everything. But what happened now? Even before passing down a disease to someone, we have to think a thousand times! Is it how we attained maturity or is it just the way we live? I'm afraid it's nothing but a mere mindset and jealousy that has brought us where we are today.

We need to realise, observe and after that change! It seems that we sometimes forget what our roots were and start to branch out in different ways. I always observed that being an Indian has always given us some kind of advantage when it comes to dealing with people, specifically sharing with them. All the festivals that we celebrate have never been about sharing money, food or any other materialistic things, rather they have been about giving our precious time, keeping our friends and loved ones happy and fulfilling their wishes. This is what our culture teaches us and we must adhere to it as well. Lastly, these three keys to a more abundant life: caring about others, daring about others and sharing with others.

Partager c'est aimer!

Nous disons à juste titre que partager, c'est aimer, car lorsqu'une personne partage avec ses amis sous la famille, cette personne le fait parce qu'elle l'aime. et partager, ce n'est pas seulement donner une partie de ses biens mais aussi son amour. Je pense qu'aimer et prendre soin, c'est partager seulement. Je distribue toujours ce que j'ai avec tout le monde pour rester heureux. que ce soit ma famille, mes amis ou des étrangers, nous ne devons pas cesser de partager comme toujours. enfin je dirai que ce sont toutes les pensées qui comptent.

Il y avait deux amis dans une forêt, un manguier et un banian. Ils se parlaient toute la journée. Chaque nuit, des lions et des tigres venaient dormir sous eux. Le manguier n'aimait pas les animaux. "Je vais les chasser." Il a dit: « Ils rugissent fort et sentent mauvais.

Le baniandit : « Ne fais pas ça. Nous avons besoin les uns des autres. Nous devons vivre ensemble. Mais le manguier ne l'écoutait pas. Cettenuit-là, le manguier secoua ses branches et fit des bruits forts. Les animaux ont pensé que c'était un démon et ils se sont en fuis. Le manguier était heureux.

Le lendemain soir, deux bûcherons sont venus dans la forêt. Ils ont vu le grand manguier. L'un d'eux a dit : « Il n'y a pas d'animaux sauvage ici. Alors sabattons cet arbre. Ils ont commencé à couper le manguier. « Je t'aiderai que nous avions besoin des animaux et qu'il savait que nous avions besoin de nous. Si nous ne nous aidions pas, nous pourrions être blessés. ## जलवायु परिवर्तन

जलवायु बदल रही है,
जीवन बदल रहा है।
मौसम कठोर हुआ है,
गंभीर असर पड़ा है।

धुआं-धुआं बढ़ रहा है,
कण-कण कहीं जल रहा है।
सिर्फ अपने से मतलब रहा हमें इसलिए,
समुंदर आगे बढ़ रहा है।

मौसम पहले कितने अच्छे थे,
कोयल की कूक से सावन बरसते थे।
सजधज के लताएँ खिलती थीं ,
सुगन्ध मनमोहक बिखेरती थीं।

धरती को हरा-भरा करेंगे,
जीवन के तरीके बदलेंगे।
फिर बसंत ज़रुर आएगा,
पपीहा फिर से गाएगा।

मौसम भी अब बदले-बदले हैं,
रिश्ते जैसे हों अनजाने।
यह परिवर्तन विकास को अवरुद्ध करता है और,
जीवन की संभावना को कम।

अब अंदर तूफान समेटो,
जीवन के परिवर्तन पर सोचो।
यदि अब भी न जागे,
तो क्या होगा हमारे वंशजो का सोचो।

इसलिए महत्वपूर्ण है विकास लक्ष्य 13,
